According to Nurgiyantoro (2002: 165) character can be defined either as the actor of the story or physique. Human have different unique character so each individual has his/her own characteristics during his/her interaction with other individuals.

Sumardjo & Saini (1985: 64) stated that the quality of a story is determined by the skill of the writer to construct the charrracter that seems alive to the reader. If the character in the story is "weak", we cannot deny that the story will be "weak" as well. Each of the character suppose to has his/her own personality which is based on his/her past, education, origin, and his/her life experiences. A talented writer is skillful in exposing the whole background of someone’s story event in one scene by inferencing the background in the actor way of speaking, reacting to an event, dressing and many other a verbal and non verbal actions.

Although that they tent to be less important that men and be underestimated, women are very interesting figure to be discussed since they have a very huge role in the society. Herman (2010: 3) stated that the role of women can not be seperated from the life itself. After the feminism campaigh has been trending topic and popularized by activists and critical brainware especially in Aceh, women as the readers, litterature, or the character in the literature is always become a trending issue to be examined. Many women authors involve in this case, and their novels are mostly related to the women matter (Darsono, 2006). In Aceh, the women issue has never been behind the times since Aceh has the great historical background as the witnesses of the greatness of women such as Keumala Hayati and Cut Nyak Dhien. After indonesian’s independency, Aceh has an internal quarrel with NKRI which triggered the continuent conflict, earthquake and tsunami disaster on December 2004. 2. How are the Acehnese women characters in 21st century novels?

THEORITICAL BASE

According to Nurgiyantoro (2002: 165) character is an actor of a story which can be simply defined as the nature in which the character in the story and its nature is a solid combination that can not be separated. From that statement, a conclusion can be taken that each character in the story has to be with a certain characteristics that exclusively possessed by each of them because the nature of a character itself will create a series of events in the plot which will lead the story become more alive, interesting and challenging.

Nurgiyantoro (2002: 166) stated that characterizing is a process that show a certain character with a certain characteristics in a story. Jabrohim (2003: 107) stated that characterizing is an author’s technique to introduce the character in the story to the reader or an author’s technique in appearing the ordinary character. It can be concluded from that statement that characterizing is an effort of the writer to determine the character and his/her characteristics with various technique and methods of introducing the individual in the story line.

The nature and characteristics os a human can be analyzed from his/her reason of doing a particular action in the story. This reason is mostly called as motivation. Motivation can be catagorized into two groups. They are exclusive motivation and motivational base. The exclusive motivation can be known from the impromtu reason of a character in unconsciously doing a particular action, talk. Meanwhile, motivational base can be utilized from the common character’s nature such is the possibility of an actor in changing their desirability or the attention in controlling the other character continously in the story.

Sahid (2008: 26) stated that a literature opus is a reflection from the real world that uncover all of social issues. The analysis of the role of women in a literature opus can be either a discourse or a idea toward the women’s development from time to time since literature represent the society from era to era.

This study tells about the independency of women in the acehnese society who are capable of doing many activities without men’s assistence (Rismawati, 2013). Besides, feminishm issues are discussed in many studies in Indonesian’s journal such as The women’s integirity and gender relation in the most up-to-date Indonesian’s literature novels, created by female’s authors. This study discuss about the female integrity and form of struggling gender relation.

As the base assumption, that in the latest decades variorum opuses which prioritize the patriarki ideology arised to the surface of the society awareness. Most of thoses opusses are written by female authors (Chasanah, et al, 2009).

Inoeng is character who has rigid soul and abitious. It can be proven through her attitude and audicity and her ambition to reveal her anger or revenge toward the rapist by contaminate the HIV HIDS. Inoeng was isolated because she was a bastard. A bastard is a huge disgrace in acehnese culture which is very strict with Islamic teaching. Inoeng is one of the example of a humble and simple Acehnese women but the violent and unhuman treatment toward her had changed her to be a tough and abitious person to reveal her revenge. Here is the slight pharagrap of TI Thamrin’s novel.

Mak Santan is a reflection of tough and brave women as a symbol of heroic women. Mak Santan is also an old women who did not believe in superstition that is contradictory with islamic faith. To be note that the islamic value is the highest aspect in Acehnese society rather than cultural value. Fitriah is a picture of a kind and well mannered women in her attitute and appearance which is in line with Acehnese culture and islamic teaching value.

Women Characters In The Novel Tungku

Acehnese women have strong characteristics, they have a tenet that it is better not to mourn the sufferings. The crisis that Saban suffered in her life has carved her to be tougher in facing the life. That is the characters that was created in the Acehenese novels Tungku. they are Anan, Inem Ipak, and Empun Siti.
Anan is an old women who has audicity and wishful thinking who uphold law, tradition, and justice in the local village. She intentionally sacrificed her eyes as to express her paringful. Arafat Nur descript the character of Aceh women in her novel Percikan Darah di Bunga without pretention. Her life experiences which full of suffering and atrocities of armed conflict have spawned the character who seem alive, especially the female figures Meulue and Mak Beuleun. Meulue is a women who was born in an dayah enviroment which based on the islamic teaching which prohibit non-muhrim women and men to touch even though without any lust. Here is a piece of his novel.

Mak Beuleun’s attitude is very polite when she was living in someone else’s house who are should be emulated by nowdays society. The home owner fully aware of Mak Beuleun’s mental condition of her living in his house that she was under severe pressure after being raped by some armed men.

Aceh Women Character In The Novel Lampuki

As the novel Percikan Darah di Bunga, in this novel Arafat also write the story that expose the female character based on her own experiene as an Ustadzah. Most of the Acehnese women’s character in the novel did not reflect the polite image of Acehnese women. The figure of Halimah represents not only the attitude of a selfish and unashamed women of Aceh but also minor picture of some Acehnese women who are obscene. These attitude is somehow contrary to the cultural value of Acehnese women in Aceh. Hayati is a women who is selfish and rebellious againts men. Besides, she liked to slander other people. Her mouth would never stop reprehending that is why, she is the best model for a minor group of Acehnese women who like to talk about others behind.

Siti is an example of an obedient to Islamic teaching Acehnese women who are not only work for themselfe but also their environment and people around them by reminding surrounded people to worship and to obey the husband. It shows a Aceh women attitude accordance with the Acehnese norms, culture and tradition.

Women Character In Marwah Di Ujung Bara Novel

It has the similarities with other novels that the character of women in the novel of Marwah di Ujung Bara is also have a strong characteristic. Right after reformation, the nation was not stable so it was the tough time with its problem to carve their personality to be patient and brave figure in order to help their growth. Meanwhile, Halimah is an eyes witnesses of Military operation terror in Aceh. She loosed her husband, her children during the conflict but she still rigidly face that sorrow.

SUMMARY

Based on the elaboration of the result and discussion above, the writer conclude some points as follow:
1. Generally, the female characters of Aceh in 21st century novel are strongly influenced by the conflict and tsunami in Aceh. The inhumane treatment of groups of armed men has altered the character, behavior, and mindset of Acehnese women. The conflict has transformed them to be ambitious, brave, resilient, and courageous in facing any problem in their life.

2. Some Acehnese women depicted in the novel are gentle, honest, and obedient personality who also maintains the politeness as a reflection of the strong Islamic values and culture. They always keep their appearance based on the religious guidance.

3. Despite the chaotic conflict happened there are also a minor Acehnese women who are portrayed in a novel that has a negative nature. They always take advantage of opportunities for personal interests, issuing obscene words, and having an affair. However, it does not affect the image of Acehnese women in general.

Based on the summary that was taken from the discussion, here are the list of recommendation from this study:

1. The character of Acehnese women should be implemented in students’ learning media. The future generations have to understand that Acehnese women's character reflected in the Aceh novel has its own uniqueness from Indonesian women in general since they have good role models.

2. Acehnese women's character reflected in Aceh novels is a part of local wisdom image which should be used as a scientific study material by researchers and cultural experts around the world.
